Description	The purpose of this proposal is to support the sustainability of a previous PSYC 1101 textbook transformation course conducted by colleagues Drs. Brian Pope and Lisa McNeal. We will develop new materials to help enrich the learning experience of students taking online and face-to-face introduction to Psychology courses at the College of Coastal Georgia. We will collaborate with colleagues from various psychological background areas who will bring their expertise to the integration of new content. We plan to include introduction videos from all faculty participating in the development of supplemental materials, in addition to recorded mini podcasts specific to each faculty member's area of focus. Moreover, we will develop our own power points to supplement the textbook which will incorporate discussion questions throughout. In addition, we will develop a new module focused on the topic of gender and human sexuality (which will include online readings from various scholarly sources). Lastly, to keep students engaged, we will create a number of e-resources for learning course material, including crossword puzzles and interactive media games.

Budget	Dr. Aurora Ramos Nunez will receive $1,625; Dr. Neda Moinolmolki will receive $1,625; Drs. Marci Culley, Carla Bluhm, and Charlsie Myers will each receive $250; We will use $800 for the purchase of 1 video recorder and two voice recorders.
